Reference: Goose Creek Stream Restoration Letter of Understanding

Dear Paul:

The NC Ecosystem Enhancement Program (NCEEP) and the City of Durham have entered into a Memorandum of Agreement (dated January 13, 2004) for a restoration project on Goose Creek in Durham NC. The MOA outlines responsibilities and agreements of each party. NCEEP is hereby providing a letter of understanding that summarizes the financial responsibilities of all parties involved. The purpose of this letter is to clarify said responsibilities of the NCEEP and the City of Durham related to the stream restoration project.

The NCEEP will be responsible for 100% of the costs for design, land acquisition, and construction associated with stream restoration (except where noted in the City of Durham's responsibilities). The NCEEP will also be responsible for all costs associated with monitoring and maintaining the physical and biological aspects of the constructed project for a period of five years from completion. In the event that maintenance is required, it may involve such examples as repairing man-made structures designed for stream stability and replanting vegetation is areas where survival is low.

As outlined in the MOA, the City of Durham will be responsible for the removal and disposal of the existing "hard" infrastructure, which lines the banks of Goose Creek, including the fabriform mattress along the Eastway School reach and the masonry walls along the Long Meadow Park reach. The City of Durham holds no responsibility to maintain the project during or after the five-year monitoring/maintenance period following construction. The intent of the project is to create a naturally self-sustaining aquatic system with no long-term need for maintenance. The restored stream system and vegetated areas included in the easement area will be subject to the provisions and restrictions of the conservation easement and the state and federal laws associated with the Clean Water Act that are applicable to the waters of the United States of America.

The design drawing with depicted limits of construction provided as an exhibit with the temporary construction easement does represent the approximate limits of the easement. The easement boundaries will be determined more precisely as the project design is developed.. The City of Durham and the NCEEP will agree on the exact locations of the easement based on the design. Thereafter a survey and legal description will be prepared by a Professional Land Surveyor (cost to be incurred by the NCEEP). A preliminary survey will be made available for all parties to review and comment on. If any modifications are required, they will be done at this time. Once the plat meets the City's approval, it will be recorded. At completion of construction of the restoration project, a permanent easement will be conveyed to the State by the City.

This letter establishes a clear understanding of financial responsibilities related to the stream restoration project and the conservation easement.

With Best Regards,

Suzanne Klimek
