Elmer P. Gibson Papers

Elmer Pettiford Gibson was an African-American chaplain in the U.S. Army throughout World War II and the Korean War. Gibson was born on June 24, 1903, in Greensboro, N.C. After graduating high school in 1922, he attended Lincoln University in Oxford, Pa., graduating in 1926. In 1930, Gibson was the first black graduate from Crozer Theological Seminary in Chester, Pa., and went on to attend graduate school at the University of Pennsylvania, receiving his Master’s of Sociology in 1932. He was able to attend the University of Pennsylvania through a scholarship offered to him by Crozer Theological Seminary. Gibson went on to graduate from Chaplain’s School at Harvard University in 1942 and Advanced Chaplain’s School at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, in 1946. After his military career ended, Gibson earned a master’s degree in educational psychology from Temple University in 1959. That same year he was elected president of Morristown College in Tennessee and stayed in the position for the next ten years. Gibson’s ministerial career began long before his formal schooling. He was licensed to preach at the age of sixteen at St. Matthews M.E. Church in Greensboro and was assigned to several churches throughout his career, including ones in Atlantic City, N.J. and several in Pennsylvania. In July 1933 Gibson married Melnese Wilson, and together they had two children, Cornelia Gertrude, born August 14, 1934, and Elmer H., born March 8, 1940. In 1941 Gibson was called to active duty as a chaplain in the U.S. Army. On February 10, 1941, he was commissioned first lieutenant in the Chaplain Corps. He was commissioned as a major in the Chaplain Corps of the Regular Army on July 5, 1947. During his military career, Gibson received the Legion of Merit in 1945 for exceptionally meritorious performance during his tour of duty in the Aleutians Islands during World War II, and the Bronze Star and Oak Leaf Cluster in 1952 for service in Korea. Gibson retired from the Army in 1957 with the rank of lieutenant colonel. During his time as a chaplain, Gibson served in various locations throughout the United States and was stationed overseas during both World War II and the Korean War. Throughout his career in the U.S. Army, and later as the president of Morristown College, Gibson participated in debates regarding equality for all races, the complete integration of the Army, and the need for higher education options for African-Americans. He believed that all races should learn, at the very least, to tolerate all other races.

The Elmer P. Gibson Collection consists of three boxes of material and includes correspondence from his time in the Army, various papers related to his service, photographs related to his personal and professional life, booklets and pamphlets related to the Army or religious services, and speeches and sermons he gave as a chaplain and after retiring from the Army. Materials related to the U.S. Army are filed in chronological order. The sermons and speeches are mostly undated and are arranged in the folders in no specific order. The photographs are mostly undated, but were placed in folders in the same order and arrangement in which they were received.

Contains items related to Gibson’s career as a chaplain in the U.S. Army, with a few folders of items from his time as president of Morristown College. The folders titled “Chaplain School Educational Materials” contain booklets, tests, and handouts that Gibson received during his time in Chaplain School for the Army. The folder titled “Army Papers” contains various documents issued by the U.S. Army, including memorandums, baggage shipment requests, medical treatment requests, Gibson’s statement

<td>of personal history, and his separation qualification record. The folder of “Integration of the Army” materials contains correspondence, surveys, and publications, including a survey titled, “Employment of Negro Manpower,” with handwritten responses by Gibson. The folder titled “Legion of Merit Award” contains all materials related to the award that Gibson won in 1945. The “Miscellaneous Ministerial Documents” folder contains Gibson’s deacon’s credentials and marriage licenses of ceremonies he performed. The next two folders contain published materials, speeches, and written reports related to Morristown College or Gibson’s time as president of the college.</td>

<td>Includes folder titled “Materials Related to Black Higher Education” containing publications released by various authors related to the education of African-Americans. The “Miscellaneous” folder contains an honorary certificate issued by the White House at the time of Gibson’s death and a map of Arlington Cemetery, presumable indicating the location of his gravesite, as well as other materials. Also includes five folders of sermons written by Gibson; one folder containing fragments or missing pages from sermons that could not be matched with those in previous folders; one folder of speeches Gibson wrote and delivered; and one folder of miscellaneous handwritten and typed notes in regard to various sermons and speeches. Only a very small number of these items are dated.</td>

<td>Contains photographs and negatives. The first folder contains personal photographs, including those of Gibson’s wife and children. The next six folders contain photographs related to his time in the U.S. Army. These photographs were arranged in the order in which they were received, and most include no date or description. The folder titled “Traffic Accident” contains very graphic photographs of the victims of a traffic accident. Gibson’s relation to the accident or the people involved is unknown. The final folder contains photographs of a wedding ceremony that Gibson presided over. This folder also contains the marriage license originally enclosed with the photographs because it is presumed that these are related.</td>
