19	Willard M. Newton Papers, 105th Engineers  Contains a typescript of the diary of Pvt. Willard M. Newton of Charlotte (Mecklenburg County), May 18, 1918 - April 19, 1919, detailing his service in Co. F, 105th Engineers, 30th Division.
[22-31]	Joseph Hyde Pratt Papers, Commander, 105th Engineers  Papers reflecting the military service of Col. Joseph Hyde Pratt of Chapel Hill (Orange County), commander of the 105th Engineers. A native of Connecticut, Pratt earned a bachelor of philosophy degree and a doctorate from Yale University. He moved to North Carolina in 1897 to join the Toxaway Company and to work as a mineralogist with the N.C. Geological Survey. Soon thereafter, he was appointed state mineralogist, a post he held until named state geologist in 1906. In these capacities, Pratt was credited with the discovery of several minerals. He was also active in the acquisition of land for state and national forests, and in the nascent State Highway Commission, serving as its secretary for a period. A member of the state guard since 1913, Pratt enlisted in the army on July 24, 1917, and was commissioned a major of engineers. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel in November and assigned to command of the 1st Battalion of the 105th Engineer Regiment, which assembled for training at Camp Sevier, South Carolina. On May 18, 1918, the 105th Engineers left Camp Sevier for Camp Mills, Long Island, preparatory for disembarking for service overseas. On June 1, Lieutenant Colonel Pratt commanded a detachment of the regiment that sailed for Europe aboard the Talthybius (the main body was transported on the Melita ). Both vessels landed in Dover, and the regiment was reunited in Calais on June 14. Pratt assumed command of the 105th on June 19, when Col. Harley B. Ferguson was assigned the duties of American Second Corps engineer. The engineers received training from the British until July 10, when the regiment moved to the Ypres area. Here they trained with the 30th Division until August 17, when the division relieved a British division in the front lines of the Canal

Sector. The 105th spent the next two weeks improving the fortifications, roads, and water supply in the area. On August 31, the 30th Division launched an attack on the German lines south of Ypres. After temporary assignments with the British First and Third armies, the 30th Division was permanently attached to the British Fourth Army on September 22 and relieved the Australian Corps in the trenches at Bellicourt. A week later, the division attacked the Hindenburg Line and achieved a breakthrough. From October 8 to 19, the 30th Division and its engineers were engaged in daily attacks that pushed back the German lines. The 105th remained in France until the first of April 1919, repairing roads and preparing defensive positions. Pratt was the officer in charge of troops aboard the U.S.S Martha Washington on the homeward voyage. He received the Distinguished Service Cross and was discharged from service on June 12, 1919. War service took a heavy toll on his health, forcing his resignation as state geologist in 1924. Pratt died in 1942.

| 32 | Kiffin Y. Rockwell Papers , French Foreign Legion and Lafayette Escadrille |

Papers reflecting the service of Sgt. Kiffin Yates Rockwell (and his brother Paul) of Asheville (Buncombe County) in the French Foreign Legion and the Lafayette Escadrille. A native of Newport, Tennessee, Rockwell moved with his family to Asheville when he was fourteen. He attended Virginia Military Institute and Washington and Lee University but did not graduate from either. Within a week of the outbreak of the war in Europe in August 1914, Rockwell and his brother departed for Europe to volunteer for service with the French army. They enlisted in the French Foreign Legion and both were soon severely wounded, Kiffin by a machine gun bullet in the thigh in May 1915, an injury that put an end to his career with the infantry. When he was sufficiently recovered, Rockwell became a charter member of the newly formed Lafayette Escadrille, a volunteer organization of American flyers, despite a complete absence of aviation experience. In May 1916, he became the first member of the unit to shoot down an enemy plane. He downed at least three others before being killed in aerial combat on September 23, 1918.

The collection includes Rockwell's personal letters and postcards, 1914-1916, to his mother, Dr. Loula A. Rockwell, sister Agnes (2), and Mrs. J. J. Chapman (concerning the death of her son, Victor, a fellow American flyer); letters of condolence (and one vitriolic attack) written to his mother after his death, 1916-1917; correspondence between his mother and brother and Fred A. Olds and Robert B. House, concerning the donation of his letters and papers to the N.C. Historical Commission, 1917-1922; biographical sketches and information concerning Kiffin Rockwell and his ancestry; thirty-four photographs and an album containing photographs of the Rockwell brothers, the French Foreign Legion, the Lafayette Escadrille, and German prisoners of war; news clippings and articles; a scrapbook of clippings, poems, and photographs kept by his mother; and printed materials, including two copies of the North Carolina Booklet (April-July 1920), containing a sketch of Rockwell by Robert B. House; an issue of Ex Libris (October 1923), featuring an article by Paul A.
