SmART Initiative

Burnsville - Durham - Kinston - Wilson

Demonstrating how the arts transform downtowns and fuel sustainable economic development.
SmART Towns & Cities

• Work as a partnership that includes the arts, economic development sector, local government and private developers.
• Create a local resource team that works with N.C. Arts Council staff and expert consultants.
• Envision plans large enough in scope and scale to transform the community in a significant way, reflect its unique characteristics and demonstrate strong potential for sustainable economic development.
• Engage community and key stakeholders through public and individual meetings and focus groups.
• Receive $15,000 - $40,000 grants each year for 3 - 5 years to plan and implement SmART projects. Each community must create a plan to raise additional funds.
BURNSVILLE

- Oldest town square in State; statue of Town namesake Admiral Otway Burns
- Home to one of 47 International Dark Sky Parks, which houses largest public telescope in Southeast
- 18 mountain ranges over 6,300 feet including Mount Mitchell, the tallest peak east of the Mississippi
- Highest concentration of craft artists per capita including 58 professional glass artists
Working with DOT as it develops 19E Entranceway into Scenic Byway

Nationally known artist Jack Mackie was selected by Local Resource Team to create an artscape vision plan to enhance 19E gateway and town streetscapes to attract more visitors, residents and businesses.
Vision plan recommends using quilt designs, stone seating and telescopic glass markers to showcase the area’s natural history and craft traditions.
The stone quilt pattern, shown above, is the Ohio Star and references a quilt made by Burnsville quilters that now resides in the Vatican.

Implements from local farm machinery will be used to create a garden quilt pattern on a retaining wall, shown left.

• Toe River Arts Council has received several NEA Our Town grants for gateway project.
• The gateway project is employing 50+ local artists, and all materials for fabrication are being locally sourced.
• Town of Burnsville has committed 2% of capital improvement project funds to public art.
• Historic NuWray Inn, top left, has re-opened along with a brewery, new businesses and restaurants.
DURHAM

Creating an arts and entertainment corridor to:

• Improve walkability and connectivity.

• Maintain and showcase Durham’s unique character and assets as corridor changes dramatically.

• Increase spending in arts venues, hotels, restaurants, shops and bars.

• Encourage private developers to invest in public art and artscape plan.
Local Resource Team chose internationally renowned Mikyoung Kim Design firm to create an artscape vision plan for corridor.

Corridor links Durham’s major arts and entertainment venues, but is unappealing and difficult to walk. Barriers include railroad tracks, drab buildings and no lighting or signage.
Olalekan Jeyifous was selected to create a wrap for the Corcoran Street parking garage to encourage visitors to cross the railroad tracks into downtown. The design is a colorful and joyous interpretation of the architectural and iconic elements of the corridor.
• Durham’s 2nd project will focus on a call to local/regional artists for ground plane or crosswalk art, or other streetscape projects.
• City of Durham has established public art program and allocated $500,000 for projects.
• Durham ranked #7 in the National Center for Arts Research’s top 10 most arts vibrant communities index and cited the SmART Initiative as a factor.
• The National Endowment for the Arts awarded the Durham SmART Initiative a $100,000 Our Town Grant and more than $250,000 has been raised from Durham city and county governments, Downtown Durham Inc., Duke University and private developers.
• More than $300 million in private development is happening along the corridor, including three new hotels.
The Kinston Music Park celebrates the important contributions of African American musicians from eastern North Carolina including James Brown’s rhythm section and Little Eva from Kinston.
• In 2006, Chef Vivian Howard returned home from New York to open Chef & the Farmer, featured in the PBS show A Chef’s Life.

• Private development has been key in restoring historic properties and converting them to boutique hotels, bars, restaurants and breweries, including Mother Earth, a green-conscious brewery with a solar-powered taproom.
Developer Stephen Hill is renovating 60 - 70 houses in historic Mitchelltown into affordable live work space for artists and creative workers in Kinston’s Arts and Culture District.
Thomas Sayre created Flue, a series of 7 tobacco barn facades to mark the entrance to the Arts and Cultural District.
Public Artist Vicki Scuri worked with the community to design a plan to enhance Queen Street from the Arts Council to the Kinston Music Park, and connect to the River Arts Walk and Arts and Cultural District.
On the evening of January 23rd, 2017, Vicki Scuri SiteWorks led a community workshop as the kickoff event of this plan. Vicki Scuri gave a presentation showing samples of her work, a comprehensive site review of the city and a sample of Public Art and Placemaking precedents. The last two of which are compiled in this plan in the Kinston Neighborhoods and Public Art and Placemaking Precedents sections, respectively.

More than thirty people attended, representing many aspects of the community. They gave their feedback on what they thought about the many areas of Kinston addressed by this plan and what they hoped to see these areas become in the future.

The room was full of excitement and optimism as the community discussed their opinions and aspirations together. The feedback received from that evening is summarized on these two pages with a group of nine circles, one for each area and one for Kinston generally. These visual summaries are a quick way to understand the pulse of the community and what it thinks about its city.

After the show, Vicki Scuri met the attendees.

KINSTON
IN ITS OWN WORDS

The circle to the right gives a visual summary of the responses given by the community when asked about Kinston generally.

The colorful outer band shows the many colors that people associate with Kinston. The size of the area for a color represents the number of votes it received.

The words inside represent a compilation of the defining characteristics, mood, images, and memorable qualities of Kinston as defined by the community. The larger the word is, the more people who used it.

GRAINGER HILL

Artistic wayfinding elements such as murals, pavement surface treatments and creative signage also tell the story of Kinston’s history and cultural assets.
An art fence would enhance the River Arts Walk and a pedestrian bridge would connect it to the Neuseway Nature Park across the Neuse River.
New Mural and Shade Structures are enhancing the Kinston Music Park.
Storefront Exhibition

Storefront exhibit includes 45 photographs of musicians from Kinston and surrounding counties.
• More than $40 million in private investment in downtown since the African American Music Trail began.

• More than $600,000 has been raised from national and state foundations and local and state government.

• Increased visitation, new restaurants, hotels, bars, brewery, distilleries, minor league baseball team
In 2010, the City of Wilson began developing a plan to build a two acre park in downtown Wilson to honor renowned local whirligig artist Vollis Simpson.
• A downtown warehouse was donated to establish Conservation Headquarters so that 30 whirligigs from Vollis Simpson’s farm in nearby Lucama could be moved and restored.

• The Kohler Foundation supported the costs of the purchase of the whirligigs and the conservation.
• A community task force raised $8 million from national, state and local sources.
• Over $25 million in private and public investment has been generated within a two block radius of the park including brewpubs, apartments and restaurants.
The Vollis Simpson Whirligig Park opened in November 2017 and is a national model for creative placemaking.
New SmART Communities

Greenville, Lumberton, Morganton and Marshall will work on projects for gateways, greenways and connecting cultural assets.
